Baotown A Novel

A simple tale, almost fable-like, with short sentences, very fitting for the folks in the isolated rural Chinese village the story is about. While the short novel is set during the time of Mao, (probably around the 1970's) and the author was herself separated from her family and sent to a commune when she was only 15, it's not really about China's Cultural Revolution.

In her first major work after the trip, the award-winning novella Baotown (1985), Wang focused on the culture of rural China, drawing from her own experience. The benevolent child protagonist is contrasted with selfish, prejudicial, cruel and close-minded adult villagers, and Ying Hong remarked that Wang used "words that carry not the least hint of subjectivity she casually tosses forth a whole string of 'slices of life'."

Ce ne sont pas réellement de petits boutons, car ils ressemblent davantage à de petites plaies suintantes qui se situent ...
