False Start in Africa by René Dumont New York, Praeger ...

According to Dumont, a French agronomist with broad experience, Africa's continuing underdevelopment was not caused by unfavorable natural conditions but by the failure of political authorities in both the colonial and postcolonial periods to adopt more appropriate policies regarding technology, peasant agriculture, industrialization, education, civil service development, foreign aid, and regional integration. On each of these subjects Dumont's analysis, sometimes technical but ...

South Africa Biology. Oculocutaneous albinism, OCA2, is the most common gene type of albinism inherited disorders among the Bantu population of southern Africa. It occurs at a frequency of 1:4000. The incidence in Sotho people in northern South Africa is at its highest, with a ratio of 1:1500 in neonates.

Persecution of people with albinism - Wikipedia

A severe backlash against church leaders prompted the South African President to urge South Africans to unite in curbing the menace of false pastors. This was followed by a three-day public protest, led by Solomon Izang Ashoms, founder of the Movement against Abuse in Churches. That this had to be a protest involving politicians and civil activists rather than the church, suggests the church ...
