Best American Short Stories 2012 - "Navigators" by Mike Meginnis. As someone who caught the tail end of the NES-generation games, this story strikes a special chord for me. Told in limited third-person narration from Joshua's point of view, "Navigators" details Joshua and his father's experience playing a fictionalized video game called Legend of Silence.

Navigators Short Story Mike Meginnis - wiki.ctsnet.org

Mike Meginnis's short story "Navigators" is well-written and thought-provoking, and it is definitely one of the better stories in the BASS 2012 collection. Coming into the story, the prospect of a story about gaming was exciting, something I can finally relate to, and I left with thoughts much deeper than that.

Joshua, the boy in the story "Navigators", written by Mike Meginnis, loves to spend time with his father Dustin playing a video game called Legend of Silence or LoS. This might sound normal. But, this game is not like other video games. It is actually a bit depressing but somehow they enjoy playing it.

"Navigators" by Mike Meginnis is a wonderful story that touches on the big issue of videogames or technology hurting relationships. It is a simple story of a father and son, Dustin and Joshua respectively. They share a love for video games, and the story focuses on the game Legend of Silence.

Mike Meginnis | Tangled Thoughts

The Navigators is a wonderful short story about a single father and his son, as they bond over a strange video game, the likes of which they've never seen before. Mike Meginnis is another author I would likely never have stumbled upon without the LeVar Burton Reads Podcast. I loved this story. I loved the relationship between the two characters. I loved the concept of a video game that ...

Nothing jumps to mind as a favorite. The more I think about it, the more Mike Meginnis's "Navigators" stands out, in part cause I really love that story, in part cause it was in Best American Short Stories, so it's easy to point to the anthologized thing as something that stands out. Also, I wasn't only stoked for Mike to be in BASS, or for Hobart, but I thought it was extra rad just ...
