Jack Davis is the last surviving founding member of "Mad," and probably the artist who had the widest audience. He has been awarded every possible tribute a comic artist can garner. Folks of a certain generation will recognize his work on everything from greeting cards, magazine illustrations, the cover of "TV Guide" and record album covers. Not bad for a man who had little formal training in art. This edition reprints all of Davis' work from the first incarnation of "Mad." In this volume ...
