Tomb Of The Pharaoh Seti

How strange that on tripadvisor, the tomb of Seti II has a separate profile and the tomb of Seti I has not. The latter tomb is the one for which separate tickets are being sold at the Valley of the Kings ticket office, for a very pricy sum of 1000 EGP. We decided to go there anyway and it turned out that the Seti I tomb is by far the most beautiful we have seen (and we were alone in the tomb without any other visitors). The relief, partly hewn directly into the rock, and the paint colours ...

Seti I - Wikipedia

The Tomb of Pharaoh Seti I The limestone relief works in the tomb of Seti I and those in the temple he built at Abydos are the finest in all of Egyptian history and among the greatest works of art in the world. It is curious that art should reach this height under this pharaoh, a military man, and then decline in the bigger-is-better attitude of his son Rameses II. While specific compositions are justly well respected, the overall standard is truly extraordinary.

The Discovery of the Tomb of Pharaoh Seti I

Privately, Belzoni viewed Seti I's tomb as perhaps the finest tomb of all the pharaohs. Disguised passageways lead to hidden rooms, while long corridors were used to distract and confuse potential tomb robbers. Despite the amazing tomb, Seti's sarcophagus and mummy were found to be missing. A further 70 years would go by before archaeologists discovered Seti I's final resting place.
